FIRM PROFILE

Andrew T. Traylor, P.A. is a focused, multi-practice firm located in Miami, Florida. The firm's practice is limited solely to civil litigation in state and federal courts. The firm enjoys an "AV" rating from Martindale-Hubbell, the highest rating given to attorneys. Although the firm is small, it regularly handles, Commercial and Business Litigation, International Aviation and MMTJA Litigation, Class Actions, Catastrophic Injury and Death Litigation, 340B FQHC Litigation, Clergy Sexual Abuse, and Insurance Litigation. The firm has developed an international presence in aviation litigation and international law. We have practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States. The firm's clients include individuals, corporations and multinational companies. The firm also represents clients throughout the nation and from around the world. But, we have never forgotten where we have come from. We still proudly represent many of those smaller clients who came to us when we started our practice many years ago.

The firm's principal attorney, Andrew Traylor, founded the firm on the belief of the "Idea". Many lawyers go to court every day trying to apply the law. We believe in coming up with the best ideas and then to apply them to the law to our advantage. Our goal is to provide excellent legal services in the small law firm atmosphere. We take a proactive approach to legal issues, often advising our clients of steps to take to avoid problems while minimizing risk. When issues do arise, we have not only successfully filed and prosecuted suits on behalf of our clients, but we have successfully defended our clients and often proved them to be right in their position. We take pride in the fact that we are a firm designed to serving our clients, treating each client and each matter with respect. This profile is designed to provide a brief overview of the firm's practice areas and to assist prospective clients in making an informed decision in choosing an attorney.

Every lawyer in our firm answers their own telephones and clients have direct access to them in the event of any question or concern. Clients are routinely advised as to the status of their cases and initial consultations are free. For much of our services, there is no fee unless we prevail on your behalf.

Litigation

At both the trial and appellate levels, Andrew T. Traylor, P.A. is 100 percent engaged in Federal and State court litigation. The firm's attorneys are in court on a regular basis, conducting trials (both jury and non-jury), motions, evidentiary hearings and a wide variety of other litigation hearings. When we are not in court, we are routinely investigating and pursuing cases for our clients. The following areas of the firm's litigation practice recur most frequently:

General Civil Litigation - To provide the most effective service to clients, the firm takes a dynamic approach to litigation management. We often initially hold a strategy meeting with the client to discuss objectives, strategies, budgeting, and fee arrangements. This attorney/client partnership often develops a strategy which will achieve the best result at the lowest cost to the client. Often the course chosen may include alternative dispute resolution (ADR) methods, creative settlement approaches or trial.

Aviation Litigation - The firm handles aviation accidents around the world. Over time the firm has muscled its way into this very competitive field with innovative ideas and arguments. The firm was the first firm to apply the Multi-Party Multi-Forum Trial Jurisdiction Act of 2002 (the "MMTJA"), 28 USC §1369, to an aviation accident and argued portions of that litigation all the way to the United States Supreme Court. The application of the MMTJA to aviation accidents will revolutionize aviation litigation in the United States.

International Litigation - As a component of aviation litigation, the firm is often immersed in litigations involving other legal systems from around the world and in the litigation of international treaties such as the Warsaw Convention, the Montreal Convention and the Hague Convention.

Commercial Litigation - The firm represents many clients whose commercial disputes culminate in civil litigation. Typical cases involve suits over breaches of contract, class actions, employment contracts and disputes, violations of agreements involving proprietary rights, complex landlord and tenant issues, real property, title and survey issues, foreclosure, negotiable instruments, commercial instruments, employment contracts and disputes.

Catastrophic Personal Injury Litigation - Andrew T. Traylor, P.A. has served as counsel in many personal injury lawsuits including wrongful death and survival actions arising from deaths by aviation accidents, drownings, truck and automobile accident, and nursing home malpractice. Some of these actions have involved theories of products liability while others have been based on intentional activity or negligence.

Insurance Litigation - The firm represents policy holders whose insurance company refuses to pay. In some instances, the firm not only seeks compensatory, but may ask for punitive damages as well.

Construction Litigation - The firm has extensive experience in representing developers, builders, engineers, subcontractors and owners in construction matters, such as failure to fulfill contractual obligations, allegations of defects, and disagreements over financial responsibility.

Condominium Litigation - The firm has extensive experience with condominium operation and litigation. Our representation has been of both condominium associations and unit owners in related disputes and has involved numerous matters including reserves, maintenance, notices, meeting, elections, property reviews, management companies and the like.

Real Estate Related Litigation - In instances where litigation of real estate related problems is appropriate, the firm has furnished its trial services covering a broad spectrum of real estate problems. These have included foreclosure, construction disputes in arbitration and the courts, matters relating to construction liens, professional negligence involving design professionals, contract and commercial leasing disputes, lender liability cases, brokerage disagreements, and title insurance concerns.

Alternative Dispute Resolution

ADR- It is important for the client to understand that a case may best be resolved either prior to litigation or, if in litigation, prior to trial. Although the firm is fully equipped to take difficult cases to trial, sometimes the best results are achieved by obtaining favorable terms of settlement through negotiation, mediation or arbitration.

Business-Related Issues

Corporate and Business Services - The firm provides general business representation, such as assisting in the formation of corporations, purchase and sale of corporate stock or commercial assets, negotiation of employment agreement, non-compete agreement and confidentiality agreements.

We assist in organizing corporations, partnerships, limited liability companies, sole proprietorships, professional corporations, and other business enterprises. This usually includes the preparation of all necessary documentation to formalize the entity's existence. When tax advice is necessary, we have long established relationships with accountants or tax attorneys to assist our clients.

We often prepare, review, and negotiate business agreements of all kinds, such as purchase agreements, license agreements, loan and guaranty agreements, employment contracts, joint venture agreements, teaming agreements, supply contracts, computer contracts, and the like. Our work includes analysis and advice concerning business transactions under the Uniform Commercial Code.

The firm has extensive experience advising enterprises which are suffering temporary financial setbacks or cash flow difficulties or are in need of general debt restructuring. While often the objective of this counseling is to avoid business failure, if the necessity of invoking the protection of federal bankruptcy laws, we often act as co-counsel with the leading bankruptcy firms.

Biographies

ANDREW T. TRAILOR

An “A.V.” rated attorney, Andrew Traylor is an aggressive litigator who concentrates on complex commercial litigation, insurance claims, construction disputes, catastrophic injury and wrongful death related matters for both Plaintiffs and Defendants. He has handled hundreds of cases involving construction disputes, numerous bad faith insurance actions, as well as commercial litigation, class actions, plaintiffs’ personal injury and wrongful death actions.

One of the few attorneys in South Florida with actual experience in construction and development, Andrew handles a variety of construction, design and engineering related disputes, including mechanic liens, and other similar matters for both plaintiffs and defendants. He also often serves as a consultant to attorneys unfamiliar with these areas of the law.
